TERMS AND CONDITIONS

Clothes Encounters of a Second Time reserves the right to accept or reject items for consignment.

Prices are set by Clothes Encounters at the time of consignment.

The consignor receives 40 percent of the selling price for their sold items.

Items are left on consignment for 60 days at the owner's risk. After 30 days unsold items are marked down by 25%. At the end of the consignment period Clothes Encounters reserves the right to send unsold items to charity.

During the annual summer and winter sales items are reduced by 50% from the original selling price. Further discounts may be applied, at the store's discretion, at the end of a season or for limited time specials or sales. Clothes Encounters reserves the right to determine the percentage markdown for these special events.

Please note, Clothes Encounters takes the utmost care of items left on consignment. However, we are not responsible for any loss or damage due to fire, theft, water vandalism, or other unforeseen event. Moreover, we reserve the right to mark down items due to flaws or damage not noticed at intake, or to send such items to charity.

Payments are made to consignors upon request one month after the sale of an item. No payments are made on Sundays. When picking up payments, consignors may be asked for photo ID.

A consignor's representative (e.g. friend, spouse or other family member) may pick up the payment provided: (a) the consignor has notified Clothes Encounters by telephone; (b) the representative supplies a note, signed by the consignor, authorizing them to pick up the payment and (c) the representative has photo I.D. (e.g.: a driver's license).

I agree to the above terms and conditions.
